Course Overview

This course will provide essential background in theoretical knowledge, clinical and technical skills required for clinicians to undertake treatment of complex endovascular challenges.

The course will provide an engaging mix of didactic and interactive lectures, live case demonstration and case based discussion.

The course will feature interactive lectures with question and answer session. There will be live case demonstrations with participants viewing cases being performed from the conference room and from both hybrid theatres at each hospital.

Attendees will be able to listen to interaction between proceduralists, the assisting clinicians and the course participants. There will be a description of equipment being used and the techniques being employed.
